

OCTOBER PAIRED CONTRADICTIONARY HYPOTHESIS EVIDENCE TESTING MATRIX

Testing the proposition that the mental health profession is an organized criminal enterprise using the following paired contradictory hypotheses. Contradictory hypotheses must meet the logical requirements that both cannot be true and both cannot be false. These are distinguished from contrary hypotheses which have the logical properties that both cannot be true, but both can be false.

PAIRED CONTRADICTIONARY HYPOTHESES

H1: The mental health profession is an organized criminal enterprise.

H2: The mental health profession is not an organized criminal enterprise.

#	EVIDENCE	H 1	H 2
E1	When Sigmund Freud was establishing the mental health profession in the United States he made the following statements: 1. “What is the use of Americans if they bring no money?...They are not good for anything else....America is useful for nothing else but to supply money....Is it not sad that we are materially dependent on those savages who are not better-class human beings.” S. Freud, p.241, Freudian Fraud, E. Fuller Torrey, MD. 2. “In the depths of my heart I can’t help being convinced that my dear fellow men, with few exceptions, are worthless....I have found little that is ‘good’ about human beings on the whole. In my experience most of them are trash, no matter whether they publicly subscribe to this or that ethical doctrine or to none at all.” S. Freud, p. 243-244, Freudian Fraud, E. Fuller Torrey, MD.	X
E2	Sir Karl Popper, who developed the criteria of testability, refutability and falsifiability for distinguishing science from nonscience adopted by the United States Supreme Court, concluded that Freudian psychological theories were not science: “Such were the reasons, more or less, which led me in 1919 to reject the claims of Freudians, Adlerians, and Marxists that their theories were ‘based upon experience’ in the same way as were those of other sciences--experimental neurology, say, or bio-chemistry. I rejected their claims because I found that their theories failed to satisfy the criterion of testability, or refutability, or falsifiability.” Sir Karl Popper, p. 174, Realism and the Aim of Science, 1956, revised 1983, Rowman and Littlefield, Totowa, New Jersey.	X

E3	The Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory 2 is structured to produce false positive conclusions that anyone taking the test is afflicted with some degree of psychological problems. Congressional Evidence Book Compendium at http://www.thesociologycenter.com/EvidenceBooks/COMPENDIUM.pdf	X
E4	No set of responses exist for the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory 2 that will score zero on all the standard interpretive scales and indicate the absence of any psychological disorder. Congressional Evidence Book Compendium at http://www.thesociologycenter.com/EvidenceBooks/COMPENDIUM.pdf	X
E5	Mental health practitioners operating as licensed businesses who use purported diagnostic tests which report false positives for everyone taking the diagnostic tests would be in violation of deceptive trade practices code.	X
E6	Beginning in 1981, the Family Institute of Virginia conducted a two year federally funded experiment to determine the effectiveness of family therapy interventions. Pre and post test measurements were taken on over 3,000 variables for a control group and three experimental groups. The data analysis indicated conclusively that psychological family interventions had no positive effects for any of the three experimental groups. In violation of federal law and the federally funded research contract, these experimental results were never reported. No final report was produced for the funding agency and no warning was issued to the public that psychological family interventions were not effective treatment for family problems. Sworn affidavit of James Roger Brown (host of Ask The Sociologist) who was a contract member of the research staff that conducted the experiment.	X
E7
E8
E9
E10
	TOTAL	6

Currently all the evidence submitted supports H1: The mental health profession is an organized criminal enterprise. Any members of the mental health profession with documentable evidence to support H2 or proof that any of the evidence currently submitted which supports H1 is false, please submit it.